

How to Deeply Improve the National Spectator Phenomenon from All Aspects of Society

Wangqi Li

Vanke Meisha Academy, Shenzhen, Guangdong 518000, China

zzz030709@126.com

Keywords: Spectator phenomenon, Feudal ideology, Network platform, Institutional improvement

Abstract: How to discover the causes of the spectator phenomenon mentioned in Mr. Lu Xun's literary works from the root and gradually improve the spectator phenomenon has been a difficult problem to be solved for the development of contemporary society and become one of the obstacles to the long-term development of the country. This paper analyzes the inferior root causes of the national spectator phenomenon from three directions: ideological submissiveness, the still imperfect network management, and the lack of inner motivation, and thus proposes ways to improve the spectator phenomenon by strengthening the study of advanced educational ideas, improving the norms of network usage with the times, and ensuring the guarantee mechanism of moral models, thus enhancing the quality and cohesion of the nation, which is beneficial to the future development of the country.

1. Introduction

In the development of contemporary society, instances of national spectatorship are emerging and becoming more frequent. If the country wants to comprehensively weaken the spectator culture, it is necessary to find the root causes and targeted solutions. The improvement of the spectator phenomenon is an important manifestation of the psychological quality of the nation, as well as an important guarantee for strengthening the spirit of national unity and promoting the joint efforts of all people to reach a common development goal for the future.

2. Root Causes of the Spectator Phenomenon

2.1 The Submissiveness to the Feudal Ideology Planted the Root of Spectators

People in the feudal society were indifferent and insensitive to the people of the lower class who suffered from a torturous fate due to their submissiveness to the feudal ideology, such as the spectators of Sister Xianglin and Kong Yiji, who were eager to see and hear the stories of other people's suffering. To them, listening to the stories of the underprivileged is like listening to something funny. The spectators have no ability to distinguish between right and wrong, their spirit is empty, and they have no thoughts. The spectator mentality, which has been a pathological problem in the national psyche since feudal society, is showing signs of resurgence in modern non-feudal society. The modern spectators always have the mentality that they do not care about themselves when they face some cases of tragic life experiences or setbacks, and they also leave their own malicious comments on the Internet platform to get the psychological pleasure of verbally damaging others. This subservience to feudal ignorance, numbness, and indifferent thinking has made people become spectators in every aspect^[1].

2.2 The Cover of Network Platform and Virtual World

With the development of technology, the way people communicate and exchange has now become more convenient. The major network platforms and social media have become the places where people go to relax and unwind every day. However, the virtual nature of the network provides the opportunity for watchers to speak ill of others without having to bear the consequences, which makes more and more watchers surround others with the network, among which there are mostly words like sarcasm and mockery. In the era of high information technology, people's casual typing, the words issued may be the last straw that crushed the tragic people, and outside the network, like people just watching the light-hearted also mocked and coaxed, people face the elderly fell unassisted spectator events are also numerous. The majority of watchers become more reckless in watching others online without the need for face-to-face communication and without strict restrictions online.

2.3 Insufficient Motivation to Be Willing to See Justice and Courage

The state has always encouraged people to resist bad guys in ideological education and has always provided relevant incentives to honor moral exemplars. However, due to the complexity of the certification process and the number of supporting documents required, many brave people or their families are unable to successfully apply for bravery protection for their loved ones, and many heroes who suffer from physical illnesses as a result of their bravery are unable to get protection for their subsequent lives and even face threats to their lives from criminals. This leads to other people who may have the idea of lending a helping hand in such situations to focus on being a spectator rather than actually taking action. The imperfect system in society leads to a lack of motivation for people not to be spectators or to resist spectators in their daily lives, and the general environment of society does not bring perfect protection to the brave and courageous, nor does it allow more people to participate in the process of not being spectators.

3. Analysis of Strategies to Improve the Phenomenon of Spectatorship

3.1 Pay Attention to the Study of National Spiritual Thought

In order to resist the rekindling of feudal thought, first of all, it is necessary to cultivate and build a good moral defense of the nation. The change in the root of spiritual thought is the prerequisite for people to make behavioral changes, and only after having the correct moral concept can they learn the content of correct values in depth and clarify the great harm of the spectator phenomenon. Therefore, the key to improving the spectator phenomenon is to strengthen the learning of the minds of people of all ages, and the learning of the minds in communities, schools, and institutions is an important step to achieve the goal of building the correct values^[2].

3.2 Increase the Overall Supervision and Management of the Government

The second task to prevent and eliminate the spectator phenomenon is to increase the overall supervision and management of the state. With authoritative institutions and official guidance and teaching, the learning of correct concepts can be carried out in the society; the punishment of negative examples can be implemented; the system of safeguarding the rights and interests of moral models can be practically improved. At the same time, the regulation and control of social media are inseparable from government and state supervision, and official policies can more deeply warn people to regulate their language and reduce the chances of watchers being unscrupulous under the shelter of the network. Government supervision and planning play an important supervisory role in social development to ensure the smooth development and implementation of initiatives, and the intervention of authoritative institutions will also enhance people's attention to the elimination of the spectator phenomenon and determination to improve it.

4. Solutions to Prevent and Eliminate the Phenomenon of Spectatorship

4.1 Strengthening the Construction of National Advanced Spiritual Learning

By implementing group moral consciousness and positive role model learning to people, the ideological consciousness of people of all ages in society will be enhanced. Starting with the general student population, we will add ideological education courses in all schools, universities, and colleges, and supervise the effective implementation of the courses comprehensively. At the same time, by opening more reading-themed activities in local communities, adding local offline libraries for people to use, and providing online book resources to advocate people to read more books, so as to create good learning and reading atmosphere in the society and achieve the goal of improving the cultural and ideological quality of the nation.

4.2 Set Up Standardized Requirements for Network Use

The major social platforms and news media have an important guiding role in promoting correct ideas and behavioral models, while the own limits of network use give many watchers the opportunity to surround others with random words. Even though China has now introduced explicit regulations on the standardized language of the Internet, there are still imperfections that need to be revised and edited to keep up with the times, so that the requirements of the Internet become more complete and comprehensive. Strengthening the information management of the network environment, resisting the spread of bad information and wrong values in society, adding more comprehensive policies to regulate network security and information management, creating a good network information environment, and not giving the opportunity to the villains with ulterior motives is an important part of eliminating the opportunities for watchers on the network.

4.3 Improve the Protection System to Increase the Power Source

By building people's collective sense of responsibility and justice and publicizing the positive effects of acts of bravery, it can strengthen people's awareness of learning and respecting moral models in society; when the relevant system about the brave people is maintained, it will inspire people to carry the power source of not being spectators and daring to lend a helping hand spontaneously from their hearts, and the guarantee of the social environment for resisting spectators can further promote more people to join. The protection of the social environment against spectators can further promote more people to join the group of people who don't watch and dare to do.

5. Conclusion

Identifying the root causes of the spectator phenomenon, prescribing the right remedy, combining with the learning of correct values and the supervision and management of the government and the state can make all aspects of the solution effectively implemented and carried out. In the future development of society and the country, people need to further improve the solutions according to the actual situation and the development process, so as to implement more ways to deal with the spectator phenomenon.

References

- [1] Li Mingxu. Ideological and political counselor. [D] Chongqing: Chongqing Electronic Engineering Vocational College, 2017
- [2] Yang Shuxiong. Chinese spectator psychology and civic moral education [J] Journal of Heilongjiang Institute of Education, 2009, 09: 88-89.