Abstract: The film “children are not stupid” is a film from Singapore. After watching it, the author felt it necessary to introduce it to many teachers and parents who were engaged in education at that time. The story of this film is very short, and there are not many characters. Some ordinary families or some small things in children's development can't help but arouse people's much thinking after watching it. Especially for us who are both parents and teaching staff, we need to think from many aspects. The 14-year-old and 15-year-old children are in the bloom of puberty and ignorant of thinking. They also need more attention from parents and teachers, that is, when children need to communicate with others.

1. Introduction

“Children are not stupid” mainly tells about the different methods of educating their children in each family, the family environment where the children are located and the parents' educational methods are also different. But under these different educational methods, what is the situation of the children and the psychological development of the children? The story of this film is very short, and there are not many characters. Some ordinary families, even some simple little things in the family life at the stage of children's development, but after watching it, it can not but arouse people's many thoughts, especially for people with dual identities of parents and educators, they need to think from multiple angles.[psychological appreciation of children not stupid]

As most previous articles analyze the film from the perspective of PSYCHOPEDAGOGY or code switching, I will focus on the application of Maslow's hierarchy of needs in social psychology to appreciate the film, which will be carried out from the following aspects:

2. The Embodiment of the Need of Love and Belonging in the Film.

Jerry always wanted his father to go to see his performance, but because they always said they were busy, Jerry always overheard his father's words “give me five hundred dollars and my hour belongs to you”. So Jerry began to want to save money to buy his father's time and let his father go to his own performance. Because he could get the love of his parents, Jerry actively raised money and had no choice but to steal the money from the convenience store. Tom and Chengcai didn't feel love and belonging at home, but they felt love and belonging in the small gangster group. When the small gangsters told them “join us and we'll cover you later”, they immediately got a sense of belonging and joined the small gangster group without hesitation. Later, Tom and Chengcai were caught and blackmailed by the fake police because they were instructed by their brothers to steal things, and they also stole the old woman's gold chain because they wanted to give money to the fake police. Although they finally found out their conscience and handed it to their mother-in-law, they were caught by the neighbors. In order to save her son, the mother knelt down and begged her father for forgiveness. Later, the successful mother was injured and died in the battle with the little gangsters. Later, with the help of Tom and his father, Tom successfully arrested the fake police.

When children are constantly criticized and criticized by their parents, they tend to ignore the psychological pressure brought by their busy work, but when they are constantly scolded by their parents, they tend to pay attention to it. Because parents do not take into account the psychological frustration and loss of children when they accept their ridicule of work, and these feelings are narrowed or even invisible in children, because they do not understand that what children need most on the way of struggle is the guidance and help of parents, nor do they understand the happiness and excitement of children when they get a reward job. Of course, parents also have their own difficulties. For example, Zhang Guobin's mother in the play has also accepted the pressure from the outside world and the pressure from the society. However, she can't calm down and don't communicate with her children. She is just anxious for success and vent her desire to make her children become talents on her children's head; She completely ignored the child's nature, only because of her wrong concept of family education and the social environment at that time, she could only force the child to become the type needed by the society. Of course, this analyzed her helplessness from the perspective of Li Guobin's mother, but I don't think it's necessary for the child to bear any more helplessness of adults, Because the child's heart is too simple, too cowardly and can't accept it, and what the child needs is appropriate guidance, encouragement and help, so the child's childhood should be happy and perfect. The problem of his mother's teaching is not that he can't, but that his father used the wrong method. "There are no children who can't teach, only parents who can't teach". It was only when Li Guobin's mother's life was about to end that she found that she was wrong. It was precisely because of God's kindness that her life had a turn for the better that her children's young hearts could no longer be so seriously impacted.

3. The Need for Respect is Reflected in the Film.

Tom's blog is very good, but his mother doesn't think so, and Tom's achievements have not been recognized accordingly. When the gangsters said to Tom, "I heard that you are good at architectural design websites and help our gang design a web page, and these computers are yours", Tom instantly felt that he was respected and his eyes lit up.

4. The Expression of the Need for Self Realization in the Film.

After her mother died of illness, she became a talent and actively practiced martial arts. Finally, she competed on behalf of Singapore and won the national martial arts championship. Finally, she achieved self realization.

However, can parents really solve the problem by adopting hegemonism and violence? In daily life, people always say, "some children can get 90 points if they hit them, and 70 points if they don't." This sentence reflects that the parenting style of contemporary parents is facing some serious problems.

These are some reflections of Maslow's hierarchy of needs theory in the film. Next, we will talk about children's education from the aspects of family education and appreciation education.

4.1 On the Embodiment of Family Education in the Film

1) Lack of effective communication between parents and children. This film generally describes the interpersonal relationship between parents and children of two families, and explains the significance of effective communication. The film goes from “parents are busy with simple dialogue with their children and lack of internal substantive communication”, to “children's hearts gradually close and gradually move to the other extreme”, to “emergencies see the efforts of parents and build a bridge of information communication”, to the film finally find “our lost soul”. In terms of details, Xueqian and Jerry continue to show their hobbies because they hope to be valued by their parents. What they receive is the opposite “ridicule” from their parents. They think it is not advisable to obtain honors that have nothing to do with their studies. They should study with heart and mind, which makes Xueqian and Jerry very depressed. We all have this sense of loss now, It has deeply dampened our passion for reading. As Jerry said, “I don't know when parents no longer support and appreciate us, but preach US endlessly. They always think we're not doing well enough and they always think they're right; I don't know when parents are busy until late at night and don't even have time to communicate with us.” From this sentence, we can hear how eager children are for more effective communication.

2) If the way parents discipline their children is not appropriate, and things make little progress, because parents can't praise them in time, when children find problems, they don't find problems first and then educate them, but just blame them in their own “power” way, resulting in repeated mistakes. There was a saying in the film that if resources are placed in the wrong area, it can be said that it is difficult waste, and if waste is placed in the right area, it is difficult resources. So I believe that every child will not be stupid, and I expect every child to be as happy as an angel! “It can be seen that parents only teach their children from their own point of view. In modern times, many parents are just like the parents in the film. However, in the context of the globalization of higher education, how crucial it is to choose a more scientific way of parenting. As Sukhomlinsky emphasized,” the same thing is in all general programs and teaching materials All teaching methods and teaching methods cannot be explicitly stipulated, which is the child's happiness and spiritual life. “In our young and frivolous period, what should be left behind should be a sense of happiness rather than full of” knowledge “that makes us feel boring. On the contrary, if we only pay attention to science and technology education and ignore the humanistic care for children, so that the young generation embarks on a road of no return, how much significance does the money make?”

4.2 The Important Role of Appreciation Education in Education

In recent years, appreciation teaching has been paid more and more attention by education departments and recognized by parents. Its basic idea is that there are no crops that are not planted well, only farmers who do not plant crops; Without poorly educated children, there are only parents who cannot be educated! Although the psychology of farmers looking forward to a good harvest of crops is completely similar to that of parents looking forward to their children's success, their behavior is completely opposite: when the harvest of crops is poor, farmers never complain about the crops, on the contrary, they have been looking for reasons for themselves; When their children are poor in learning, parents are more complaining and blaming, and rarely reflect on their mistakes. Although Mr. Fu's teaching students in the film are diligent, they have little effect. In order to improve the school's Chinese performance, he used the weekend to make up for the school's compulsory tuition and bought Xinhua Dictionary for the school at his own expense. However, all these selfless contributions not only failed to gain the school's recognition and moving, but also exacerbated the teachers' confrontation and contradiction. Fu teacher was puzzled and blamed the reason on the students' weariness and playfulness. In the final analysis, the main reason is that Mr.

Fu failed to get the “key” that the young teacher said - “look less at their defects and more at their advantages”, which is the most basic content of appreciation teaching. By amplifying the advantages and progress of children, children can feel motivation and care, and then strive to do better. In the family and primary school teachers, a word of encouragement and a look of approval from teachers and parents will bring infinite motivation to children in adversity or setbacks and confidence and courage to overcome difficulties. On the contrary, blindly criticizing and blaming will only erode the children's original weak sense of social responsibility and creativity, and make the children go farther and farther on the wrong road.

In addition, parents and society attach too much importance to children's academic achievements, but ignore effective humanistic care, which gives children too much depression. Although she wanted them to study hard on campus, her father only talked about grades with the children when she came home. As Xiao Shu said, “children are tired, first of all, they are tired. Exam oriented education is essentially a simple competition teaching, but the competitive skills are not the skills of limbs, but the skills of wisdom.” However, parents do not take into account their practical talents, but constantly scold them and ask them to strive to achieve the goals they want. In the eyes of adults, good grades are the king. In this way, many children do not feel the happiness of their studies. They just feel that their studies are just a very mechanical job for children, which makes them gradually form a tendency of weariness. As a student, the father hates the vicious circle caused by his studies: because the students' grades are bad, the teachers look down on them more and more, and the parents are unwilling, so he tends to be tired of learning; It is also because of weariness of learning that teachers' grades are not good; it is also because students' grades are not good that teachers look down on them more and more. So my father became more and more critical.

All kinds of ways and methods of educating children are different, but we should be able to keenly see the advantages of each child and find its shining points. We can't be stingy and appreciate it. Give children more confidence. Don't attack children all the time. It should be noted that good children boast. Of course, it is not to advocate simple and unprincipled praise, so that after people understand that good children are boasted and that simple accommodation can destroy children's life ideals, people should respect and understand children, especially for children of a specific age, and be mentally prepared for the emotional repetition and behavior changes of children. Adults and children need to praise and appreciate. They should also learn to see the advantages around others and try to observe others with appreciative eyes. Especially for some immature children, appreciate and praise more to give children a confident life. We should cultivate a correct outlook on education. We should not expect too much of our children or put pressure on them. In fact, the feelings generated by this film are far more than the above. For example, Yang Xue qian, the two talented children realized that there was something wrong after stealing and returned to return it. However, how does our society treat such children? In order to achieve the goal of killing chickens and respecting monkeys, the school beat Yang Xue qian in front of many schools, causing profound reflection. How should our society deal with this problem? Therefore, it is suggested that parents and teachers can take time to ask and watch this film.
