

Research on the Relationship between Advantages of the Socialism with Chinese Characteristics and the Modernization of University Governance

Heyi Huang

*Faculty of Marxism, Guangdong Lingnan Institute of Technology, Guangzhou, Guangdong, China
W_kingful@163.com*

Keywords: Marxism, The Unique Advantages of the Socialist System with Chinese Characteristics, Modernization of Higher Education Governance

Abstract: Based on the perspective of Marxist development, this study explores the relationship between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance. The research findings reveal that the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics are mainly manifested in the special strengths in leadership and management, which have significant impacts on and roles in the modernization of university governance. Firstly, the development perspective of Marxism enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to accurately adapt to the trends of the times and provide clear and comprehensive guidance for the modernization of university governance. Secondly, the national organizational construction and the core leadership position enable the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to play a leading role in university governance and promote the optimization of governance structure and the enhancement of governance capacity. At the same time, the modernization of university governance also promotes the manifestation and enhancement of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. The modern governance practices and institutional development provide better conditions and support for the transformation and utilization of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. By deeply analyzing the logical relationship between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance, and through strengthening national organizational construction, promoting reforms in the governance structure of universities, enhancing the professional competence of university administrators, and conducting in-depth research on the modernization of university governance from the perspective of Marxist development, the advantages can be transformed into important prerequisites for the effectiveness of university governance, thereby promoting the process of modernization in university governance and enhancing the overall strength and competitiveness of universities.

1. Introduction

In contemporary society, universities play a crucial role as important institutions for nurturing talents, inheriting civilization, and driving technological innovation. The modernization of university governance is thus vital for ensuring the quality and development of higher education. Under the perspective of Marxist development, the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, particularly in terms of national organizational leadership and management, have significant impacts on the modernization of university governance. Therefore, conducting an in-depth exploration of the relationship between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance will provide valuable insights and references for both university development and national endeavors ^[1].

This paper aims to study the interrelationship between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance, investigating how the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics influence and propel the modernization of university governance, as well as how the modernization of university governance promotes and utilizes the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. Firstly, we will discuss the impact and role of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics on the modernization of university governance, including its firm belief and theoretical confidence, organizational construction and cadre development, mass foundation and social resources, leadership core and organizational strength, among other advantages ^[2]. Secondly, we will explore how the modernization of university governance facilitates and harnesses the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, including its role in advancing organizational construction, enhancing influence, and fostering cohesion. Lastly, we will look ahead to the path of advantage transformation, encompassing measures such as strengthening organizational construction, promoting reform in the governance structure of universities, enhancing the professional competence and leadership abilities of university administrators, and so on. Through an in-depth study of the interrelationship between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance, theoretical guidance and practical references can be provided for the continuous development of university governance modernization and the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. Simultaneously, it also contributes to enhancing the overall strength of universities and playing a greater role in cultivating more qualified talents and promoting social progress.

2. The unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics

The unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics refer to the special advantages it possesses in terms of leadership and management, which are derived from the Marxist vision of development.

2.1. Firm faith and theoretical confidence

As the cornerstone of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, its firm belief and theoretical confidence enable the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to play a guiding role in the modernization of university governance. The development perspective of Marxism equips the socialist system with Chinese characteristics with a scientific theoretical approach and mindset, enabling it to accurately grasp the trends of the times and provide clear and comprehensive guidance for the modernization of university governance ^[3].

The firm belief of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics ensures that it always maintains the correct political direction and value orientation, driving universities towards the right path of development. Its theoretical confidence empowers it with the ability and courage to solve problems and face various complex situations and challenges, providing solid theoretical support for the modernization of university governance.

2.2. Organizational construction and cadre development

The unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics in organizational construction have profound impacts on the modernization of university governance. Its commitment to serving the people wholeheartedly is exemplified through the establishment of a sound organizational system and mechanisms for cadre selection and training, effectively promoting the stability and professionalization of the leadership cadres in universities. Its organizational strength enables it to oversee the overall situation, coordinate various aspects, and play a core leadership role in university governance. The cadre selection and training mechanisms of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics ensure the quality and capabilities of university management, facilitating the scientific, standardized, and professional development of university governance^[4].

2.3. Mass base and social resources

The socialist system with Chinese characteristics has a broad mass base and rich social resources, which is one of its unique advantages. It always adheres to the tenet of serving the people wholeheartedly, pays attention to listening to the voices of the masses, pays attention to the interests of the masses, and responds positively to the expectations of the society; the mass base makes the socialist system with Chinese characteristics able to unite the social forces, form a wide range of synergies, and promote the modernization of university governance. The social resources of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics include political resources, economic resources, cultural resources and so on, which makes it better able to mobilize the strength of all aspects in the process of university governance and provide support and guarantee for the development of universities.

2.4. Leadership core and organizational strength

As the leading core, the socialist system with Chinese characteristics has an irreplaceable role in the modernization of university governance. It adheres to the principle of combining collective leadership and individual responsibility, and promotes the scientific, democratic and standardized governance of colleges and universities through the establishment of a sound decision-making mechanism and coordination mechanism.

The organizational strength of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics is also an important manifestation of its unique advantages. The organizational system enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to coordinate planning and work, ensuring the coherence and stability of university governance. Its leadership cadres are even more highly cohesive and combative, providing strong motivation and support for university governance.

3. Modernization of university governance

Modernization of university governance refers to the process of continuously improving the management system and mechanism of universities to meet the requirements of the times under the perspective of Marxist development. The modernization of university governance is of great significance to the effective performance of universities and the improvement of their overall strength.

3.1. Optimizing the governance structure

One of the key elements of modernizing university governance is optimizing governance structure. This includes establishing a scientific and rational decision-making mechanism, a diversified interest coordination mechanism, and a fair and transparent supervision mechanism. A scientific and rational decision-making mechanism ensures that decisions in universities are more scientific, democratic, and efficient. A diversified interest coordination mechanism helps balance the interests of various parties, reducing conflicts of interest and ensuring the smooth progress of university work. A fair and transparent supervision mechanism effectively prevents corruption, enhancing the fairness and standardization of university governance.

3.2. Improving governance capacity

Modernizing university governance also requires improving the professionalism and leadership capacity of university administrators. College administrators should have a comprehensive knowledge structure and professional background, and be able to effectively deal with the various challenges faced by colleges and universities. In addition, they should have good leadership skills and be able to stimulate the enthusiasm and creativity of team members. Improving the governance capacity of university administrators will help to enhance the scientific, democratic and standardized nature of university governance.

3.3. Strengthening participating subjects

Modernized university governance requires a wide range of participatory subjects and gives full play to their active role. This includes faculty, staff, students and alumni within HEIs, as well as government departments, social organizations and industrial enterprises outside HEIs. They should jointly participate in the decision-making process, supervise the operation of colleges and universities, and provide resource support for colleges and universities. By strengthening the cooperation and interaction of the participating subjects, it is possible to realize the diversification and common governance of university governance and to promote the development of university-industry-education integration, university-enterprise cooperation and other aspects.

3.4. Promoting informatization

Informatization is one of the important means to modernize the governance of colleges and universities. Colleges and universities should increase the application of information technology and promote the construction of informationization. By establishing an efficient information platform, the efficiency and quality of university management can be improved. At the same time, informatization can also promote the synergy and information sharing of various links within colleges and universities, and improve the scientificity and accuracy of decision-making. In addition, it is important to focus on protecting information security in the construction of information technology to prevent information leakage and misuse^[5].

4. The interaction between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance

4.1. Impact and influence of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics on the modernization of university governance

The influence and role of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics on the modernization of university governance are far-reaching and multifaceted. In addition to providing guidance and leadership for university governance, its unique advantages also play important roles in the following aspects.

Firstly, the firm belief and theoretical confidence of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics provide clear and comprehensive guidance to the modernization of university governance. The development of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics always adheres to the belief in Marxism and is guided by a scientific theoretical framework, drawing wisdom from it and guiding practice. This enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to accurately grasp the trends of the times and the characteristics of university governance, providing the correct direction and path for university development. The theoretical confidence of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics empowers it with the ability and courage to address problems and challenges, enabling it to scientifically respond to various complex situations in university governance, and promote universities towards the right goals. Secondly, the organizational construction and leadership core position under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics enable it to play a role in overseeing the overall situation, coordinating various aspects, and ensuring the coherence and stability of university governance. Its leadership core position allows the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to provide guidance and decision-making in university governance, ensuring that decisions are more scientific and democratic, and promoting the optimization of university governance structure and the enhancement of governance capacity. Furthermore, cadre development under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics provides important guarantees for the modernization of university governance. Cultivating high-quality cadres under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and improving their professional competence and leadership abilities contribute to the scientific, standardized, and professional development of university governance. Additionally, the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics are also reflected in its close relationship with the organizational and mass foundation^[6]. The mass foundation under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics enables the state and localities to gather social forces and form broad collaboration, promoting the modernization of university governance. Guided by the purpose of wholeheartedly serving the people, the socialist system with Chinese characteristics pays attention to listening to the voices of the people, caring about their interests, and actively responding to social expectations. Under the guarantee of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, university governance can mobilize various forces to better exert governance efficiency. Overall, the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics have a significant impact on the modernization of university governance, ranging from providing guidance and leadership to influencing decision-making, organizational development, cadre training, and the connection with the masses. They contribute to the continuous development of university governance and the realization of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics.

In summary, the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics have had an important impact and influence on the modernization of university governance. The unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics have provided important support and guidance for university governance through the exertion of firm beliefs and theoretical self-confidence, organizational construction and cadre building, and mass base and social resources. At the same time, the modernization of university governance also promotes the exertion and enhancement of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. In the future, we should further strengthen the transformation and exertion of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, and promote the modernization of university governance to a higher level ^[7].

4.2. The promotion and exertion of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics by the modernization of university governance

Firstly, the modernization of university governance provides a sound institutional guarantee and environmental support for the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. The modern governance system enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to participate more smoothly in university governance and play a leadership role. Scientific, democratic, and standardized governance mechanisms provide a solid foundation for the transformation and implementation of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, ensuring that university governance develops in a scientific and standardized direction. Secondly, the continuous improvement of the modernization of university governance also enables the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to play a greater role. The optimization of the governance structure enhances the coherence and stability of university governance. The enhancement of governance capacity allows the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to provide more scientific assistance in university decision-making, planning, and management, thereby promoting universities in the right direction. Through modern governance practices, the socialist system with Chinese characteristics can better exert its organizational power, mobilize social resources, and provide stronger support and guarantees for universities.

The advancement of the modernization of university governance also provides more space for the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. The modern governance environment enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to play a better leadership role, maximizing its organizational power. The guiding role of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics in universities is further strengthened, effectively uniting all faculty, staff, and students to form a collective force in pursuing common goals. The socialist system with Chinese characteristics can better mobilize positive energy and creativity from all sectors, promote the integration and sharing of resources within and outside universities, and drive the scientific development of universities ^[8].

4.3. Mutual influence and interaction between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance

The mutual influence and interaction between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance are a close and complex relationship. On the one hand, the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, through guiding the practice of modernizing university governance, promote the optimization of governance structure and the enhancement of governance capacity. The firm belief and theoretical confidence of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics enable it to accurately respond to the trends of the times and provide clear and comprehensive ideological weapons and action guidelines for the modernization of university governance. The organizational power and leadership core position under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics enable it to play an important role in overseeing the overall situation and coordinating various aspects in university governance.

The unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics provide a scientific theoretical foundation and methodology for the modernization of university governance. Adhering to the theoretical guidance of Marxism enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to better adapt to the direction and goals of university development. The theoretical confidence of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics equips it with the ability and courage to address problems scientifically and cope with various complex situations and challenges in governance practice. Furthermore, the organizational construction and leadership core position under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics enable it to play a leading role in university governance, ensuring that decisions are more scientific and democratic, and promoting the optimization of governance structure and the enhancement of governance capacity. Its organizational power and cadre development provide important guarantees for the modernization of university governance and enhance the coherence and professionalism of university governance. On the other hand, the continual improvement of modernization in university governance provides a strong institutional guarantee and environmental support for the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. The enhancement of modern governance structures and capabilities creates better conditions for the full play of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. The modernization of university governance requires the guidance and support of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, and through modern governance practices, it further inspires and utilizes the organizational power and leadership core position of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. The modern governance environment enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to better fulfill its core role and form a unified effort in university governance. The modernization of university governance, through the construction of modern governance systems and mechanisms, provides a solid institutional guarantee and environmental support for the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics ^[9].

There is a close relationship between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance in terms of mutual influence and interaction. The unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics have an important impact and influence on the modernization of university governance, while the modernization of university governance also promotes the play and enhancement of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. By giving full play to the interactive relationship between the two, the process of modernizing university governance can be promoted and the overall strength and competitiveness of universities can be improved.

5. The path of transforming advantages into effectiveness of college governance

In the future process of university governance, how to transform the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to promote the modernization of university governance has become an important issue.

5.1. Strengthening the organization in the context of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics

Strengthening the organizational development based on the socialist system with Chinese characteristics is one of the important avenues to transform its unique advantages and promote the modernization of university governance. Firstly, it is necessary to cultivate a high-quality cadre team under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. This includes enhancing their understanding of Marxist theory, leadership abilities, and professional qualities, enabling them to better guide university governance. Moreover, attention should be given to selecting and cultivating talents with innovation spirit and a sense of responsibility to drive the innovative development of university governance. Secondly, it is important to adhere to the organizational system of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and establish a sound governance structure under the leadership of national organizations. This means strengthening the role of national organizations in university decision-making and governance, establishing corresponding working mechanisms at all levels of national organizations, and ensuring the effective implementation of the leadership core position of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. At the same time, it is necessary to enhance coordination and cooperation between national organizations and other governance entities, forming an integrated and synergistic development situation.

5.2. Promoting the reform of the governance structure of colleges and universities

Promoting the reform of university governance structure is an important avenue to achieve the modernization of university governance and fully leverage the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. Firstly, it is necessary to establish a scientific and reasonable decision-making mechanism. This means emphasizing democratic participation, extensively soliciting opinions and suggestions from all parties involved, and improving the scientific and democratic nature of decision-making. At the same time, it is important to enhance the professionalism and standardization of decision-making, improving efficiency and quality. Secondly, it is important to establish a diversified interest coordination mechanism. In university governance, there are intersecting and conflicting interests among different parties, which need to be balanced through the establishment of effective interest coordination mechanisms. This includes establishing sound channels for expressing interests, strengthening communication and dialogue, and promoting the joint participation and shared benefits of all parties in governance outcomes ^[10].

5.3. Enhancing the professionalism and leadership of college administrators

Enhancing the professionalism and leadership of university administrators is one of the most important ways to realize the modernization of university governance. College administrators should have a comprehensive knowledge structure and professional background, and be able to effectively cope with the various challenges faced by colleges and universities. At the same time, they should also have good leadership skills and be able to stimulate the enthusiasm and creativity of team members. The scientific, democratic and standardized governance of colleges and universities can be promoted by strengthening the training and guidance of college and university administrators and improving their professionalism and leadership ability.

5.4. In-depth study on the modernization of university governance under the perspective of Marxist development

In-depth research on the modernization of university governance in the perspective of Marxist development is an important prerequisite for transforming the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. This requires strengthening research on the theory of university governance, summarizing experience, drawing on advanced concepts, and constantly promoting university governance to a higher level. At the same time, it is also necessary to focus on the study of the practice of university governance, to gain a deeper understanding of the current situation and problems of university governance, and to provide a scientific basis and policy recommendations for future reform and development. By adhering to the organizational construction of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, promoting the reform of the governance structure of colleges and universities, upgrading the professionalism and leadership capacity of college and university administrators, and conducting in-depth research on the modernization of college and university governance in the perspective of the development of Marxism, the modernization of college and university governance can be effectively promoted to achieve the transformation and exertion of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics ^[11].

6. Conclusion

There exists a close relationship and interactive influence between the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics and the modernization of university governance. The unique advantages have significant impacts on the modernization of university governance, while the modernization of university governance also promotes the expression and enhancement of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. Firstly, the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics provide scientific guidance and ideological weapons for the modernization of university governance through its firm beliefs and theoretical confidence. The organizational power and leadership core position enable the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to play a leading role in university governance, facilitating the optimization of university governance structures and the enhancement of governance capabilities. Secondly, the modernization of university governance provides better conditions and support for the expression of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics through modern governance practices and mechanisms. The improvement of governance structures and capabilities enables the socialist system with Chinese characteristics to more effectively participate in and lead university governance, while also creating more space for the expression of its unique advantages. Further discussion on the transformation path includes strengthening the organizational development of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, cultivating a high-quality cadre team under the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, and adhering to the organizational system and leadership core position of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics. Promoting the reform of university governance structures involves establishing scientific and reasonable decision-making mechanisms and diversified interest coordination mechanisms. Additionally, it is crucial to enhance the professional competence and leadership abilities of university administrators, and improve their understanding of Marxist theory and ability to address challenges. To achieve these transformation paths, it is necessary to increase research efforts on the modernization of university governance within the development perspective of Marxism, summarize experiences, and learn from advanced concepts. By strengthening the organizational development of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics, promoting the reform of university governance structures, enhancing the professional competence and leadership abilities of university administrators, and increasing research efforts on the modernization of university governance, it is possible to effectively promote the modernization of university governance and realize the transformation and expression of the unique advantages of the socialist system with Chinese characteristics.

Acknowledgements

Fund Project: Guangdong Provincial Education Planning Office 2022 Education Science Planning Project (Higher Education Special): "Research on Coupling and Linkage Mechanisms for Promoting Modernization of University Governance with the Unique Advantages of the Party under the Leadership of general secretary Thought on the Rule of Law" (2022GXJK053).

References

- [1] Tang Hongxia. Focusing on the Modernization of Eco-Governance in Marxist Perspective--Review of Theory and Practice of Eco-Governance--An Eco-Political Analysis of Gansu's "Minqin Experience"[J]. Journal of Irrigation and Drainage, 2021, 40(12):159.
- [2] Hui Yu. Research on the Modernization of Ideological and Political Education under the Perspective of National Governance Modernization [D]. Jilin University, 2022.
- [3] Bian Fei, Zhang Weiliang, Zhang Ping. Research on improving the effectiveness of ideological and political education in colleges and universities under the perspective of modernization of governance system and governance capacity [J]. Heilongjiang Higher Education Research, 2021, 39(01):126-130.
- [4] Wu Lipao. The cultural logic of modernization of internal governance capacity of universities [J]. China Higher Education Research. 2020(05):59-65.
- [5] Lin Dongwei. Three Key Points to be Grasped in Promoting Comprehensive Strict Governance of Party in Colleges and Universities [J]. School Party Building and Ideological Education, 2020(07):13-15.
- [6] Tang Kaipeng. The Experience and Innovation of Universities in Promoting Comprehensive Strict Governance of the Party in the New Era [J]. Chemical Engineering Progress, 2020, 39(04):1612-1613.
- [7] Wu Rui, Pierre Pastrnak. Experiences and Implications of the "Contract Management" Model of German Higher Education: A Comparative Analysis Based on the Texts of the Seven Versions of Objective Agreements of the Humboldt University of Berlin [J]. Tsinghua University Education Research, 2020, 41(01):126-133.
- [8] Jia Liao, Niu Junming. Theoretical Connotation, Operation Mode and Optimization Path of Internal Power Supervision in Universities [J]. Heilongjiang Higher Education Research, 2020, 38(02):32-36.
- [9] Zhao Youliang. The Rules of Procedure of Party and Government Meetings of Universities in the Context of Governance Modernization--Taking 26 Universities Directly Under the Ministry of Education as an Example [J]. Journal of National College of Education Administration, 2020(01):70-79.
- [10] Lu Feng, Cui Huahua, Wang Yining. Educational community construction: The logic and path of enhancing the modernization of university governance capacity [J/OL]. Journal of Beijing University of Aeronautics and Astronautics (Social Science Edition), 2022(06):1-7.
- [11] Hou Zhenfa, Jiang Tao. Promoting the modernization of university governance with the unique advantage of the Party [N]. China Social Science Journal, 2022(01).