These measures aim to improve the level of integrity in logistics management at private universities, providing a strong guarantee for the healthy development of private universities.

1. Introduction

With the continuous development of society and the progress of higher education, private universities have gradually become an important part of China's higher education system. As an important support for the development of private universities, logistics management, and its integrity issues have received much attention. However, as the scale of private universities continues to expand, issues in logistics management have become increasingly prominent, among which the issue of integrity management is particularly important. It is directly related to the teaching quality and sustainable development of private universities. How to establish and improve integrity systems, strengthen integrity education, enhance integrity supervision, enforce laws and disciplines strictly, and enhance transparency in management are urgent issues in the logistics management work of private universities. This paper will discuss and explore the integrity management in logistics administration work at private universities from the following aspects.[1]

2. Establishing and Improving Integrity Systems

Establishing and improving integrity systems is the foundation of integrity construction in logistics management work at private universities. Integrity systems are the specific manifestation of anti-corruption work and are important measures to prevent and punish corrupt behaviors. In the integrity construction of logistics management at private universities, establishing scientific, standardized, and effective integrity systems can ensure that all work is rule-based and traceable, enhancing the transparency and fairness of management.[2] At the same time, integrity systems can also strengthen the supervision and restraint of management personnel, preventing abuses of power and self-interest behaviors. By clarifying the responsibilities and integrity requirements of management personnel at all levels, formulating strict integrity norms and disciplines, and strengthening supervision and enforcement, the integrity awareness and self-discipline of management personnel can be effectively enhanced. Moreover, establishing and improving integrity systems can also promote the standardization, scientification, and legalization of logistics management at private universities. By establishing supporting supervision and integrity education systems, a comprehensive, systematic, and effective integrity construction system can be formed, promoting the healthy development of logistics management work.

Therefore, establishing and improving integrity systems is of paramount importance in the integrity construction of logistics management work at private universities. Each private university should, in accordance with its actual situation, continuously strengthen and improve the construction of integrity systems, enhance the transparency and fairness of management work, and provide a strong guarantee for the healthy development of the school.[3]

(1) Establishing Integrity Education Systems: Education is the foundation, and systems are the guarantee. In the logistics management work of private universities, integrity education systems should be established to carry out various forms of integrity education. This can enhance the integrity awareness of teachers, staff, and students, encourage compliance with integrity regulations, and create a good campus integrity culture.

(2) Implementing Integrity Employment Regulations: Integrity employment regulations, aimed at staff engaged in public service activities, are strict requirements to prevent corruption. Serious implementation of integrity employment regulations and strengthening the ideological and work style of staff are essential to better promote the development of various undertakings in private schools.

(3) Establishing Integrity Risk Prevention Mechanisms: Risk prevention mechanisms are pre-warning mechanisms. By establishing integrity risk prevention mechanisms and strengthening supervision and management of staff, potential problems can be identified and resolved in time to prevent corruption.

(4) Improving Financial Management Systems: Financial management is an important part of university logistics management. Improving financial management systems, enhancing the transparency and standardization of fund use, and reducing unnecessary expenses ensure the smooth operation of various undertakings at the school.

(5) Improving Supervision Mechanisms: Supervision mechanisms are in-process control mechanisms. By establishing and improving supervision mechanisms, strengthening the supervision and management of various departments and works at the school can prevent corruption.

(6) Establishing Reporting Reward Systems: Reporting reward systems are post-event control mechanisms. By establishing reporting reward systems and encouraging teachers, staff, and students to actively report various disciplinary and legal violations, the restraint and motivation of staff can be enhanced.

(7) Implementing Accountability Systems: Accountability systems are post-event control mechanisms. By establishing accountability systems and punishing staff who violate integrity regulations, an atmosphere of awe and self-discipline can be created.

(8) Strengthening Assessment and Evaluation Systems: Assessment and evaluation systems are assessments and evaluations of various works at the school. By establishing and improving assessment and evaluation systems, enhancing the assessment and evaluation of various departments and works at the school can promote the smooth development of various undertakings at private schools.[4]

3. Strengthening Integrity Education

management work at private universities. Integrity education refers to improving the ideological understanding, moral level, and integrity awareness of management personnel through propaganda, education, training, etc., enhancing their compliance with integrity regulations and discipline. In the integrity construction of logistics management at private universities, strengthening integrity education is very significant. Firstly, integrity education can cultivate the integrity awareness and self-discipline of management personnel, preventing corruption. Through propaganda and education, management personnel deeply realize the importance of integrity for the development of the school and their careers, consciously comply with integrity regulations and discipline, and enhance their integrity awareness and self-discipline. Secondly, integrity education can promote the improvement of professional qualities and moral levels of management personnel. Management personnel are the main body of logistics management work at private universities, and their professional qualities and moral levels are directly related to the effectiveness of integrity construction. Through integrity education, management personnel can be guided to establish correct professional moral concepts, improve their professional qualities and moral levels, and enhance their sense of responsibility and dedication. Finally, integrity education can enhance the legal awareness and rule of law concepts of management personnel. Integrity construction cannot be separated from the guarantee and support of the rule of law. Through integrity education, management personnel can understand and master relevant laws, regulations, and rules, enhance their legal awareness and rule of law concepts, and consciously comply with the requirements of laws, regulations, and rules.

Therefore, the private colleges should be combined with their own actual situation, scientific, comprehensive and effective honest education plan, strengthen the publicity, education and training of management personnel, improve the honest consciousness and self-discipline ability, form a good atmosphere of advocating honesty, against corruption, provide strong guarantee for the healthy development of the school. The specific measures are taken as follows:

Integrity supervision refers to the oversight and inspection of the implementation of integrity systems, serving as an important means to ensure the effective implementation of integrity construction. Supervising all aspects of logistics management work can help identify and correct existing issues, ensuring the implementation of integrity work. In the integrity construction of logistics management at private universities, strengthening integrity supervision is also of great importance. First, integrity supervision ensures the strict implementation of integrity systems. Through oversight and inspection of the implementation of integrity systems, violations can be identified and corrected in time, preventing the systems from being mere formalities. Second, integrity supervision enhances the integrity awareness and self-discipline of management personnel. Through supervision and inspection, management personnel remain vigilant, enhancing their compliance with integrity regulations and discipline. Additionally, integrity supervision promotes the professional qualities and moral levels of management personnel, fostering a sense of responsibility and commitment. Establishing a reporting system is essential, encouraging teachers, students, and the public to supervise and report on logistics management work. Moreover, strengthening the supervision and management of personnel in key positions prevents the abuse of power and strict law enforcement can effectively curb corruption and improve the effectiveness of integrity construction.

Therefore, establishing a comprehensive supervisory mechanism, including routine supervision, special supervision, and regular inspections, ensures thorough supervision. Continuous enhancement of supervision in key areas and critical links, such as bidding and procurement, infrastructure projects, and student cafeterias, is crucial to identify and correct issues in time.

Secondly, it can safeguard the interests and image of the school. To investigate and punish the violations of the regulations of clean government can prevent the loss and influence caused by corruption and misconduct on the school, and maintain the reputation and image of the school. Finally, the measures of strict law enforcement include the establishment of a sound law enforcement mechanism, strengthening supervision and management, and serious investigation and punishment of violations. Specifically, a special law enforcement agency can be established to supervise and manage the integrity construction of logistics management; strengthen the supervision and management of management personnel, prevent the abuse of power and power for personal gain; seriously investigate and punish the violation of integrity regulations, and investigate the responsibilities of relevant personnel. When investigating and dealing with violations of the regulations on clean government, it must be carried out in accordance with the law and regulations. Additionally, information transparency allows for social supervision, identifying and correcting violations in time to prevent corruption and malpractices. Measures for strengthening information transparency include establishing information transparency systems, setting up information transparency platforms, and enhancing the promotion of information transparency. Information content can include policies, regulations, and requirements related to school logistics management, as well as information of interest to teachers and students. Simultaneously, the timeliness, accuracy, and completeness of information should be emphasized, ensuring its authenticity and credibility.
