Abstract. The essence of education is to strive to awaken the students' hearts with their own hearts. As a "evangelist" in the new era, they should have not only ideals and beliefs, but also a good standard of morality. Keep good moral standards in mind at all times, keep pace with the times, constantly learn and enrich themselves, and strive to influence students with correct thinking, noble morality and good conduct through themselves, so as to achieve a harmonious teacher-student relationship to achieve the entire campus harmonious.

Keywords: morality enhancement; talents foster; education and teaching; teaching law.

1. Establish a Lifelong Learning Consciousness and Firmly Believe in Morality Enhancement and Talents Foster

There is an old saying goes: "The most important thing is to establish a good moral standard for the society which followed by the military and military merits of the country. After many years, although the words said in the book are very old, they are always read and will not be abandoned, this is truly immortal." In other words, establishing noble virtues is nobler and more immortal than meritorious deeds and founding theories[1]. Xi Jinping once emphasized in the political conferences of universities in China: "we must have an excellent character, and always keep the morality in mind". "Only by virtue can morality be realized, but if there is talent but no morality, it will cause harm to society." Adhering to having good morals, teaching students how to learn through morality and teaching through morality, only by these can we meet the requirements and guidelines of "teacher is the model of man". All in all, as a college teacher, we should be strict with self-discipline, cultivate mind and body through good morals, lead students through our language and behaviors, enhance morality and foster students' talents, unite inquiries and moral cultivation and strive to become a real teacher, so as to identify the future direction for students and promote students. Encourage students to devote their own future to the development and construction of our country from the bottom of heart and motivate our country's revival, so as to achieve the goal of further improving the quality of our people[2].

All college students should bear in mind the ideas put forward by General Secretary Xi in the major conferences, and fully grasp the connotations, so as to further improve their own ideological level. All college students should adhere to the party's leadership, strictly follow the party's command, actively assume their responsibilities, and dedicate themselves to the motherland. Enrich our own knowledge through the thoughts of General Secretary Xi, firmly adhere to the ideals in our heart, unswervingly support the party's leadership, and establish our own personality through excellent morals[3]. At the same time, this perspective is applied to school education. When teaching knowledge, every teacher should lead by example and teach students how to regulate their own behaviors, so as to embody the moral qualities of a people's teacher through practical actions. All teachers in colleges and universities should keep in mind their original intention when choosing this profession, stick to their hearts, and cultivate more excellent talents for the motherland. And while teachers are educating people, they should also continue to learn and broaden their horizons so that they can better play an exemplary role for students.

The duties of teachers is not only to impart knowledge to students, but more importantly, to pass on the excellent culture of our country to students, so that students can be proud of our culture from bottom of the heart. Among all the traditional cultures in China, morality is the most important. Teachers not only need to fully master professional knowledge, but also need to understand the Party's policies at all times, so that they can develop themselves comprehensively and lay a foundation for better education of students.

2. Strengthen the Construction of Teachers' Morality and Standardize Teachers' Individual Behavior

To be a teacher is to be a model, which is the most basic professional ethics of teachers. It requires the teacher to be a model for others, both in thinking and in daily life behavior, and must have a positive attitude, and strive to be a role model for students[4]. It requires teachers to continuously enrich themselves and keep up with the times to incorporate good professional ethics into their daily work and life. It requires teachers to continuously study various major political principles and policies, enrich their own spiritual worlds, and guide university students to become outstanding talents with high morals and good morals.

The professional ethics of a teacher is the basic qualities that a teacher should possess, and the style of a teacher is the ethos of daily behavior in daily life. As a college counselor, I am the vanguard of ideological and political education. I am the first line of contact with students' life and learning. I also have to discipline myself in the morality of teachers' morality and keep learning. We must always uphold the purpose of "surrounding students, caring for students and serving students", be close to students, care for them, and train for college students.

As a teacher, we should pay attention to our own self-cultivation of teachers, and pay attention to the comprehensive training of each student. In teaching, we should be proactive, creative, resentful, and selflessly dedicated. In addition, we also need to pay attention to the study of professional knowledge. Strive to improve individual ability and coaching level. In education and teaching, we should be dedicated to work and strict with education. The success of students is the success of teachers. Treating each student fairly is the baseline for teachers. At the same time, keep the baseline of teachers' morals, standardize individual teaching behaviors in work, and continuously improve personal education and teaching and management levels in practice, and live up to the mission of teaching and educating people given by the party and the people. As a front-line teacher, we must teach honestly, teach in accordance with the law, be serious about our work, perform our duties, and do a good job of teaching and educating ourselves, in the style of life, do not be greedy, stick to ourselves, strictly discipline ourselves, and regulate our personal behaviors, dare to take on the responsibility, dare to innovate, and be a university teacher in the new era that the party and people are satisfied with.

3. Enhance Political Awareness and Promote Excellent Culture

General Secretary Xi emphasized in an education conference: "Teachers plays a very important role in the development of human beings, and they have an irreplaceable role in cultural heritage. All teachers carry the importance of imparting knowledge and training talent Mission." Through analysis of teaching cases, we can find that all parents, students, and even society place great hopes on teachers, so they will have stricter requirements for teachers' usual behaviors. Therefore, if teachers want to live up to his trust, they must always enrich themselves, strictly regulate their behaviors, keep in mind the original intention when choosing this profession, and set a correct example for students. We should also devote most of our time and energy to the cultivation of students and live up to the expectations of society and each family, so as to cultivate more outstanding talents. At the same time, it encourages students to contribute to the development of society and the revival of our country in the future. In addition, as a qualified people's teacher, you also need to abide by regulations and keep in mind the original intention when choosing this profession, so as to set a correct example for students.

4. Follow the Law of Education, Adhere to the Unity of Teaching and Education

Only when teachers are multi-talented and knowledgeable will the students like their teachers and believe in them. Teaching and educating people are the mission of teachers. To achieve this, teachers must have solid knowledge. If the teachers do not have sufficient knowledge of their professional knowledge, and they do not have a set of teaching methods that suit their own style, then there will be many obstacles in the process of giving knowledge's to classmates. When a student asks a question, the teacher can't answer it well, which will affect the student to a certain extent. Therefore, fully mastering professional knowledge is the most basic requirement for teacher assessment. As a teacher, we can better train our students only if we have a good understanding of our professional knowledge. However, if a teacher wants to gain the trust of students and parents, it is not enough to have a wealth of knowledge. He also needs a teaching method that conforms to his own style. Then the students will be interested in learning and would like to explore in the field of knowledge under the guidance of a teacher. Teachers who can do this can inspire students and improve their innovation ability to a certain extent.

The process of teachers teaching students is mainly to teach students the theoretical knowledge in textbooks, while educating people is to promote the comprehensive development of students so that they can contribute to society in the future. Teachers in colleges and universities should always adhere to the idea of making people a leader in their own work. On the basis of imparting textbook knowledge to students, we also need to cultivate students' three fundamental views, both of which are important. Therefore, in the process of a student's growth, in addition to his family's influence on it, the teacher also plays a very important role in this process. With the continuous development of society, current students are very different from traditional students. Therefore, in the teaching process, teachers can not only concentrate on books, but also need to pay attention to the cultivation of students in three fundamental views. If you encounter an unscrupulous student, the teacher shouldn't be bored with it or even let him alone and give up educating him, but should spend more time talking to him and asking if he has encountered difficulties. We can also visit him at home to find the root cause of the student's problems, so as to impress him and make him realize that it will be sunny after rain. I believe that in the process of educating people, it is the best to train students through an education method that calls for love. The general transfer of knowledge can only arm students' appearance, but the love can make students be purified from inside to outside. Therefore, in the process of educating students, teachers should combine these two aspects, so as to promote students' all-round development.

Love plays a very important role in the education process. An excellent educator knows how to use love to affect students and empower them. An excellent teacher needs to bring warmth to the students, and at the same time, to stick up to the dignity of the students to the greatest extent in the process of education. While the teacher respects the students, they will also bring some inspiration to the students, so that in the future life, the students will try their best to respect other people.

5. Conclusion

To be a guide for students, college teachers also need to treat teaching rigorously. This is also a professional code of practice for college teachers. College teachers should carry out teaching and educating work according to the physical and mental development of students and follow the laws of education. In order to properly grasp the differences and contradictions of student acceptance in educational activities, at the same time, in the teaching process, it is necessary to refer to others, pay attention to the accumulation and update of knowledge, further improve the operating framework of "curricular teaching", and promote the benign and healthy development of "curriculum teaching".
