Abstract: with the improvement of China's comprehensive national strength and the development of the overall social level, China's position in the world has gradually improved, but the relationship with the United States has not only not been alleviated, but also more tense, the frequency of friction has increased, and the trade war between China and the United States has gradually begun. After Trump came to power, the United States unilaterally announced the WTO, and conducted a full investigation, and the friction between China and the United States has accumulated more and more, breaking the balance of economic interdependence. Based on the analysis of several feasible strategies put forward by China for the trade war between China and the United States, this paper probes into several feasible strategies of China in the trade war between China and the United States. Go deep into it.

1. Introduction

Since 2018, the United States has been provoking a trade war with China, and has always maintained a provocative posture; on May 10, 2019, the United States announced a US $200 billion tariff increase strategy for Chinese goods exported to the United States, adjusting the original 10 percent to 25 percent. In August, the United States put forward a further US $300 billion tariff adjustment policy for Chinese goods exported to the United States, adjusting the original tariff ratio to 10 percent. Since then, on issues related to China's core interests and economic sovereignty, the United States has frequently intervened, and advocated the encouragement and support of large-scale Taiwan troops to form an opposite situation with the mainland of China. China's Xinjiang issue has put forward different views, which has seriously affected the sovereignty and integrity of our country. In view of these situations, the Chinese Government further proposes to "always maintain a high degree of vigilance" and put forward a number of feasible strategies to strengthen China's core development ability, safeguard free trade, create a stable surrounding international environment, fight a good battle for human resources, comprehensively enhance the core competitiveness of the country, and safeguard the sovereignty and integrity of our country.

2. First, the essential reason analysis of Sino - US trade war

With regard to the United States to provoke a trade war with China, it is said that the "The trade war that the United States has provoked may trigger the trade balance of some people, and this difference is the first cause of the Sino-US trade war". However, according to the study by the relevant scholars, the essence of the trade war between China and the United States is that the American hegemonism is highly alert to the rapid rise of China, and it is an important and high-and-high-tech cut-off strategy for China's latest research and development. Before the U.S.-China trade war broke out, Mr. Trump has buried the pen, a series of policies he has set out after the United States president, which has a strong security. The color of conservatism. From an overall point of view, the United States can provoke a trade war between China and the United States, which can be investigated for the following reasons:

There are some cognitive differences. From the analysis of the trade situation between China and the United States in the past two years, the United States has always believed that China's "reward limit policy" and "foreign exchange dumping policy" have led to a trade deficit between China and the United States. However, this idea is unreasonable. The United States has long believed that China uses import tariffs and export subsidies for unfair benefits, but the United States has also heavily subsidized its country's vulnerable industries. In addition, the economic development form of the United States and China is different, and it is normal for the two to have some differences in tariffs, which do not violate the relevant international regulations and international law [1].

With the rapid development of economic globalization, the relationship between countries has gradually changed, and there is a diversified development trend, which has also triggered the imbalance of interests of the United States to a certain extent, which has led the United States to issue a trade war against China, trying to compete for certain interests and maintain the economic stability within the United States.

Since the reform and opening up, China has made great efforts to develop foreign trade. After China's entry into WTO, it has been committed to "improving its own economic level and developing foreign trade". In addition, the field of science and technology in China is developing rapidly, the ability of innovation is constantly improving, there are more and more high-end talents and technology, the dependence on the United States is gradually weakening, and the relationship between China and the United States has changed. All these have brought great pressure to the United States, resulting in the United States being unable to maintain the technological monopoly and talent monopoly in globalization all the time, and causing the United States to try to maintain its own position by suppressing the development of China [2].

3. Second, the feasible strategic analysis in the face of Sino-US trade war

(1) Focus on "scientific and technological innovation" and strengthen China's core development ability

In the face of the Sino-US trade war, China should seriously analyze the essential reasons for the United States to wage a trade war, and realize that the real purpose of the United States is to suppress China and curb China's development and progress. Therefore, China should always have a solid "sustainable development strategy", be free from external troubles, steadily and firmly develop its own economy, politics, culture, system, and science and technology, and be free from the influence of the United States. Resist American repression by boosting their strength. The Chinese Government should emphasize "scientific and technological innovation", adhere to the "road of scientific and technological innovation", regard science and technology as an important weapon in resisting US repression, cope with the Sino-US trade war, and strengthen China's core development ability. Although the development of science and technology in China is limited at the present stage, we should unswervingly believe in the importance of our own development, return to the normal state of relying on scientific and technological progress and develop comprehensive national strength, shorten the gap between ourselves and the international level of scientific and technological development to the greatest extent, and truly realize "good and rapid" development [3].

(2) To abide by the principle of "friendly diplomacy" and safeguard free trade

In the face of the Sino-US trade war, China should unswervingly believe in its original diplomatic strategy, abide by the principle of "friendly diplomacy," invest more manpower, material and financial resources in foreign relations, maintain friendly exchanges with neighboring countries, and take the initiative to strive for a good diplomatic situation. In the process of friendly diplomacy, China should ensure that its diplomatic fundamentals will have enough income, and then cooperate with many developing countries to resist US repression, raise the overall level of the Asia-Pacific region, and achieve progress and development. In the face of the "group" behavior of the United States, China should actively expand the scope of foreign exchanges and excel in the process of the rise of great powers. We should actively mobilize the developed economic cooperation, put forward the "Belt and Road Initiative" policy, deepen the partnership between China and the European Union, and maintain the stability of the international free trading system, so as to confront the Sino-US trade war and improve their overall strength [4].

(3) To coordinate national affairs and create a stable international environment.

In the face of the Sino-US trade war, the Chinese government should realize that the actions of the United States are not just directed at the actions of one country, but the time triggered by trade protectionism. The foreign trade provocation of the United States not only affects China's foreign economic development, but also affects the domestic political pattern. Therefore, China should take the initiative to crack down on the United States, unite with neighboring countries, strengthen cooperation with neighboring countries, maintain regional environmental stability, and thus devote more energy to the confrontation between China and the United States in trade wars. In view of the long-standing issue of Japan-ROK relations, China should coordinate with each other to maintain the stability of Japan-ROK relations and ensure the balance between regional state relations. To release pressure on the United States, resist American trade provocation, safeguard the integrity of national sovereignty and interests, and unswervingly reject the suppression and intervention of the United States [5].

(4) To train high-quality talents in an all-round way and fight well in the battle of human resources.

In the face of the Sino-US trade war, the Chinese Government should realize that any war is essentially a war between talents, especially in the face of the trade provocation of the United States, and that the Sino-US trade war is a long-term war. In this process, we may have a short period of weakness. However, only by laying unmoved, building confidence and fighting to the end can we ushered in victory and further enhance China's international status. Completely get rid of economic intervention and harassment in the United States. Based on this, the Chinese government should vigorously develop the cause of education and regard the cultivation of high-quality talents as a long-term strategic means of development. Only by fighting a good battle for human resources can we strengthen the core competition of the country. Strive to win a trade war with the United States [6].

4. Conclusion

In a word, the trade war between China and the United States is an important challenge for our country to carry out the great national rejuvenation. In the face of the continuous provocation and intervention of the United States, the Chinese Government should face up to the challenges and always maintain sufficient strategic strength. It should not only safeguard the integrity of the country's foreign rights, but also do its own things well, ensure the development and stability within the country, and enhance China's comprehensive ability, so as to remain invincible in this war of major rights and interests. In this process, the Chinese side should emphasize "scientific and technological innovation" and follow the principle of "friendly diplomacy". On the one hand, it should strengthen its core development ability and respond to foreign challenges in an orderly manner, on the other hand, it should safeguard free trade. Friendly exchanges with neighboring countries, but also to create a stable surrounding international environment, comprehensive response to the Sino-US trade war.
