Abstract: Since the implementation of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, a large number of new-age youths with awareness, commitment and integrity have been cultivated for the Party and the country, and good results have been achieved. However, most of the “Young Marxist Training Project” is only carried out at the national, provincial, municipal and college levels, and the “Young Marxist Training Project” at the school level has not yet been generally promoted, which to a certain extent restricts the “Young Marxist Training Project”. This has, to a certain extent, restricted the in-depth development of the “Young Marxist Training Project” and the popularization of ideological and political education. In this paper, we draw experience from the implementation of “Young Marxist Training Project” at all levels, especially the “Young Marxist Training Project” of Yanshan University, and analyze the actual development of Humanities and Law School of Yanshan University. We will analyze the organization and training system of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, provide a framework for the implementation of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, explore a new model for the development of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, and create a new model of the “Young Marxist Training Project”.

1. Introduction

Since the 18th National Congress of the Communist Party of China, Xi Jinping has made a series of major judgments around the topic of national youth work and put forward a series of guiding opinions, which have pointed out the direction path for the development of youth work in various institutions in China, especially in colleges and universities. In June 2020, the “Opinions on the in-depth implementation of the training project for young Marxists” was officially issued and implemented, which clearly proposes to accelerate the construction of a classification and grading system for the cultivation of outstanding young people in social organizations, to do a good job of cultivating trainees at this level and in secondary units under the leadership of the Party organization at the same level, and to cultivate for the Party and the country exemplary youth role models with firm ideals, outstanding skills, excellent quality and excellent style. From the perspective of the central government's strategic policy, it is important to accelerate the construction of the “Young Marxist Training Project” in universities from the traditional college level to the school level, expand the influence and infectious power of the project, and constantly expand the scope of the “Young Marxist Training Project”. The “Young Marxists Cultivation Project” is in line with the needs of talent cultivation in the new era and is supported by relevant policy conditions.[1]

2. Prospective Analysis of Yanshan University's Youth Horse Project

2.1 The Requirement to Broaden the Political Theory of the Classroom and Enrich the Forms of Expression

The existing training model is based on theoretical courses, with a single training mode and unsystematic practical activities. [2] In the new era, highlighting the key position of ideological and political courses and giving full play to the function of “moral education” of each school organization, and practical activities have put forward new tasks for Yanshan University to fully implement the fundamental educational task of “establishing moral education”. The “out-of-classroom” approach has become a new requirement for students to broaden their horizons and enrich the form of political theory learning. The “Young Marxist Training Project” of the College of Law is being normalized, and the traditional “teacher-led” rhythm of the classroom is being changed through richer forms of practical activities and quality development activities, so that teachers and students can experience and apply the basic Marxist theories together in practice and interaction. It is of great significance to further enhance the understanding of Marxist theory, improve the explanatory power and practical perception of Marxist theory, and innovate the form of theoretical education.

2.2 The Requirements of Broadening the Coverage and Benefits of the “Young Marxist Training Project” Horizontally

To promote the “Young Marxists Training Project” of schools is to widen its coverage in a targeted manner, further lower the threshold of the training project, broaden the coverage of the Young Marxists Training Project, and effectively expand its coverage of student groups. This will further enhance the visibility and influence of the “Young Marxists Training Project” and allow more students to come into exposure to the background of Marxist theory, understanding the basic principles of Marxism, learning about Marxist theory, and reaping the fruits of learning Marxist theory. This is not only the goal of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, but also the basic requirement of political theory learning. [3]

2.3 The Requirement to Enhance the Coherence and Systemic Nature of Talent Cultivation

The “Young Marxist Cultivation Project” of the university mainly carries out Marxist theory education by holding courses, lectures by experts, targeted seminars and end-of-course examinations. With the end of the training period, the study and training of the “Young Marxists Training Project” is basically over, and it is difficult to form a long-term systematic and consistent training mechanism. Promoting the construction of “Young Marxist Training Project” in school is conducive to strengthening the connection between the grassroots party organizations of colleges and the trainees of the colleges, and establishing an interactive mechanism and a long-term tracking and evaluation mechanism. The “Young Marxist Training Project” of the schools is the base point to form a linkage and enhance the coherence and integrity of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, which is conducive to the implementation of the long-term training program and the implementation of the macro training program. In this way, we can improve the quality and efficiency of the “Young Marxist Training Project” and build a systematic youth training system. [4]

3. Suggestions for Accelerating the Construction of the School's “Young Marxist Training Project” System

3.1 Adhere to the leadership of the university party committee under the close coordination of the party committee of each school to achieve the special implementation of the “Young Marxist Training Project

To promote the construction of “Young Marxist Cultivation Project”, the Party Committee of colleges and universities needs to take the overall picture, conduct in-depth study and systematic planning on the target orientation and implementation path of “Young Marxist Cultivation Project”, so as to prevent problems such as ambiguous target, lack of leadership and misalignment in the process of concrete implementation. In order to prevent the problems of vague objectives, lack of leadership and misalignment during the implementation process. At the same time, it should promote the construction of “Young Marxist Training Project” in schools from the perspective of implementation and assessment, and plan ahead to expand the results and scale of the overall “Young Marxist Training Project” step by step. The party committee of the university should strengthen the leadership of promoting the construction of the “Young Marxist Training Project” at the college level from the traditional “Young Marxist Training Project” at the university to the “Young Marxist Training Project” at the school level, comprehensively coordinate all factors, and continuously strengthen the support for the “Young Marxist Training Project”. The Party Committee of the university should strengthen the leadership of the construction of the “Young Marxist Cultivation Project” from the traditional college “Young Marxist Cultivation Project” to the school level “Young Marxist Cultivation Project”, and strengthen the strategic guidance of the school level “Young Marxist Cultivation Project”, pay attention to the systemic and holistic thinking of the overall coordination, and gradually explore a new mode of cultivating the basic reserve of the Party.

3.1 Strengthening College-Level Design and Building a “Young Marxist Cultivation Project” First Pattern

The Party Committee of the college should fully understand the importance of the “Young Marxist Training Project”, do a good job of designing and systematically coordinating the work from the college level, and work with the college's Youth League Committee to implement the relevant work, taking the “Young Marxist Training Project” as an important tool for the college to effectively promote “morality” and “soul cultivation”. The Party Committee of the college should do a good job of designing and systematically coordinating the project from the university level, and work with the university's Youth League Committee to implement it, and make the “Young Marxist Training Project” an important tool for the college to effectively promote the work of “establishing morality” and “nurturing the soul”, and build an early pattern for promoting the “Young Marxist Training Project” at the school level. The first is to fully coordinate the division of labor and close cooperation between the school and the college youth league committee departments, the school and college league committee propaganda department, organization department, academic work department and other functional departments actively, including the active participation of various types of administrative staff, forming a new situation of full education, linkage and synergy, to create a good organization for the school-level “youth Marxist training project”. Second, we should closely cooperate with the Party building at the college level, promote the organic connection between the “Young Marxists Training Project” and the reception and training of Party members at the school level, and strengthen the ideological and political education and the basic knowledge of the Party for the students of the “Young Marxists Class”. Thirdly, we should design and establish channels of exchange between the school level and the college level for the outstanding talents of the “Young Marxists Training Project”, so as to enhance the level and differentiation of training according to the level of mastery and acceptance of different students.

3.2 Deepen the Content Innovation and Focus on the Refinement of the “Young Marxist Training Project” Training

The focus should be precise, i.e., to read the original documents and restore the original ecological environment in small groups, combine with situational learning, strengthen the learning effect, and enhance theoretical and historical dimensional understanding. Keeping abreast of the theoretical frontier and the latest ideological dynamics, we should keep abreast of the times and deeply understand the latest achievement of Marxism in China--Xi Jinping's Socialist Thought with Chinese Characteristics for a New Era--and apply it to the practical process to enhance its theoretical appeal. In the process of youth training, we fully combine the characteristics and styles of the school, pay attention to the individuality and creative play of our students, appropriately supplemented by quality development activities and practical insight exchange, and strive to cultivate socialist successors with a broad vision and forward thinking in the new era of socialism with Chinese characteristics.

3.3 Improve the System and Mechanism, and Strengthen the Foundation of “Young Marxist Training Project” in the School

The “Young Marxist Training Project” should take into account the actual situation of the school and promote the formation of a long-term systematic and coherent training mechanism. The first is to improve the selection and recruitment mechanism, to conduct a unified and fair competitive selection for all students in the school, to ensure the quality of students by combining the basic written test and situational interview with the usual public opinion, and to select core talents with high political consciousness, solid political theoretical foundation and excellent political quality. Second, make efforts to establish quantitative standards for the selection mechanism, comprehensive inspection criteria design, assessment mechanism, reward and punishment mechanism and elimination mechanism for trainees, and improve the regular stage assessment system and multi-way lecture and exchange mode; Third, improve the evaluation mechanism, conduct instant dynamic evaluation and assessment for the trainees of this school, increase the selection, recommendation, recognition and propagation of advanced and exemplary figures, and recommend outstanding trainees. Fourth, improve the feedback mechanism, promote the formation of the interactive chain of the cultivation system, break the information communication blockage, prevent the implementation of the project from being cut off from the student body, and continuously improve and perfect the College's "Young Marxist Cultivation Project" cultivation system. In addition, we will continue to improve and perfect the training system of the College's "Young Marxist Cultivation Project", and strive to enhance the sense of participation, belonging and gaining of the students in the School's "Young Marxist Cultivation Project".

4. Conclusion

The implementation of "Young Marxist Training Project" aims to train a large number of outstanding young people who can arm their minds with the latest achievements of Marxism in China and apply it in practice, so as to play a leading and exemplary role and strengthen the ideal belief of young people to follow the Party on the road of socialism with Chinese characteristics. In the face of the new era, new conditions and new challenges, universities should take full advantage of their actual situation and attach great importance to the "Young Marxist Training Project". Universities should take into account their actual situation, pay great attention to the three-dimensional and hierarchical development of the "Young Marxist Training Project", expand its coverage and benefit, accelerate the construction of the "Young Marxist Training Project" training system, train generations of young members to become young Marxists with strong faith, and contribute to the realization of the Chinese dream of national rejuvenation. The project will contribute to the realization of the Chinese dream of the great rejuvenation of the Chinese nation.
