

The Challenge and Opportunity of the Contemporary Chinese Legal Education

Yangang Zhu

Yunnan University of Business Management, Kunming, China

Keywords: Contemporary china, Law education, Social practice

Abstract: At the present stage, there have been good development, politics, economy and culture in all aspects of our country. This paper, through the discussion on the challenges and opportunities facing the contemporary Chinese law education, points out the problems and prospects that may be encountered in the course of development, and puts forward effective development countermeasures, and is committed to helping more people to define the value and importance of the law education and to further promote the development of the law.

1. Introduction

The construction of legal system is an important measure to maintain social harmony, and the continuous development of society has promoted the rise of law education, and the training of related talents has gradually attracted more attention. It is very important to train students to establish correct legal concept and legal consciousness, to carry out law education, and to reserve more talents for the country. Therefore, it is necessary to further understand the challenges and opportunities in the process of law education.

2. The Challenge of Contemporary Chinese Law Education

2.1 It is Difficult to Meet the Needs of Professional Talents

The development of the law education is composed of the institutions of higher learning and the continuing education of the adult. Among them, the university education plays an important role in the main legal personnel training channel. In order to better promote the development of the legal system, it is necessary to cultivate more professional talents. Therefore, in the legal profession, many colleges and universities will arrange major courses such as jurisprudence and criminal law for the study of the students, and the study of these courses will also be included in the course of adult continuing education. However, with the rapid changes of social attributes, the complexity and diversity of these courses have led to the fact that these courses have not been able to meet the actual needs[1]. In particular in the field of professional law. Such as economic law. Therefore, it is difficult for law education to meet the needs of the professional talents who can adapt to the present social development as a challenge in its development.

2.2 Detachment of Social Practice

Due to the lack of practicality in the current legal education in our country, it is gradually divorced from reality. In the design of the whole educational planning, the teaching cycle of theoretical knowledge in educational institutions is obviously more, and the real practical process is very few. However, in the rapid social change and development, the theoretical knowledge alone can not effectively give full play to the real role of legal education, make its application into a paper talk, but also show the shortcomings of the current legal education in our country. For example, in the process of continuing education in colleges and universities or adults, the design, planning and evaluation of legal knowledge curriculum need to be improved in order to ensure the cultivation of legal education. The rule of law can be more adapted to the needs of the society.

2.3 Training of Legal Personnel

The cultivation of talents still needs to focus on colleges and universities and adult continuing education institutions, which are the main platforms for the development of legal education in China, but there are many shortcomings in practical education. First of all, the transmission of legal knowledge in adult continuing education institutions only stays in the basic level, and does not pay enough attention to the deep exploration, and most of the students pay attention to the promotion of academic qualifications rather than to better qualified legal work, which is not active for the study of effective knowledge. Secondly, in the education of colleges and universities, the law major is not attractive to the students, especially at the present stage of the law major. The prospect of employment is not good. Finally, people's legal awareness still needs to be improved.

3. Opportunities for Contemporary Legal Education

3.1 Promotion of Status

Legal education plays an important role in the maintenance and development of legal society. It can not only alleviate the shortage of talents in this field, but also promote the benign development of society and enhance people's legal consciousness to a certain extent. Although there are some challenges in the process of legal education, its opportunities can not be ignored. Due to the development of social legal system, the status of legal education in our country has been gradually improved, and the state and related departments have also invested more and more attention in the related fields to promote its further development. Legal education can provide an effective way to train more legal talents. Therefore, the state Not only in the capital to give more help, the investment in the construction of teachers is also increasing. For example, the selection of more professional teaching staff to participate in the training of legal related personnel, in teaching ability, practice level, education quality will be better guaranteed. These measures also demonstrate the importance that the State attaches to the development of legal education. Therefore, the promotion of legal education status is a more obvious development opportunity, which is of great significance to train more professional talents and promote the development of democracy and legal system construction.

3.2 Promotion of Education Reform

Educational reform can effectively make up for the disadvantages of the backward traditional teaching methods in the past, which can not only improve the quality of teachers' education, but also effectively enhance students' attention and enthusiasm for learning. According to the relevant investigation, it can be found that the reform measures in the education industry have been gradually deepened in many aspects of college education, and the reform of legal education is also imperative. Nowadays, the state actively advocates speeding up the process of educational reform in the field of education, and has gradually achieved good results in the education of colleges and universities. The teaching quality of many educational institutions and the effect of students' learning have made remarkable strides. In On the basis of the rising of law education and the increasing of teaching staff, colleges and institutions of adult continuing education will also realize the effective adjustment of curriculum education, which will make it more in line with the pace of social development. Combined with the current situation of the scarcity of legal talents, in order to reserve more professional talents for the country to contribute to the vigorous development of society, we need to speed up the reform process in many aspects. For example, the design and planning of courses, teaching programs, evaluation system and other aspects, enhance students' practical ability, so that they can use what they have learned to solve social practical problems, really play the value of legal education, and promote the development of social legal system.

3.3 Develop More Outstanding Talents

Excellent talents are the basis of social development, and the orderly development of legal society needs more talents as a guarantee. In the near future, legal education institutions will train more practical talents for the country. The correct guidance and education of students in daily teaching work can make them realize the importance of legal learning in their own development and society, and transform some of the existing wrong ideas. At the same time accept the correct guidance, in the continuous practice process to improve and learn. Although there are still some problems, such as disharmony between theory and practice, talent can not meet the actual needs of society, but in the global development and social progress and other problems, but in the global development and social progress. It can promote the relevant personnel to play a better role in the development of educational institutions, help students to achieve the purpose of combining theory with practice, and choose targeted teaching methods according to the actual needs of different students, so as to better achieve the teaching effect [2]. For example, in the process of implementing legal education, the hierarchical teaching method should be used to realize the purpose of cultivating talents, to teach students with different basic and learning abilities in accordance with their aptitude, to help more students better understand and apply the legal knowledge they have learned, to lay a good foundation for the cultivation of more excellent legal professionals, so as to achieve the purpose of improving the professional level and achieving the better In response to modernization.

4. The Effective Countermeasures of Contemporary Chinese Jurisprudence Facing Challenges and Opportunities.

4.1 Development of Educational Concepts

In the process of the improvement of the education management, the relevant departments should make clear the responsibility of the job, and take it as the core, and carry out the improvement of the management work, not just to devote all the energy to the development of their own, and to increase the degree of attention in the improvement of the work of the education concept. In combination with the challenges and opportunities existing in the contemporary Chinese law education, it is necessary to take appropriate measures for the scientific and effective display of the value of the legal education. The renewal of the education idea is the basic. Under the influence of the global situation, the development of the law in the continuing education of the university and the adult should be carried out in the light of the actual situation of the economic development, at the same time, the right law concept and the education work will be carried out In order to achieve the goal of the law education in our country, we can develop the professional talents with a wide field of view and lay a good foundation for the more efficient solution of the social reality in the future.

4.2 Step-by-Step Reform

Education reform has been more perfect and developed in the process of practice, but it is necessary to pay attention to the need to carry out it effectively according to the actual situation and to carry out it on the basis of defining the premise of development. In the reform of legal education, it is necessary to pay more attention to it and clarify the development position of legal education, so as to realize the educational purpose and carry out the reform step by step. For example, to formulate effective educational rules, encourage teachers to carry out scientific training methods for talents in the teaching process, and actively carry out relevant research activities or lectures in the light of the development and actual situation of the times, so as to create favorable conditions for the formulation of relevant systems and the improvement of the work, and According to practical experience, constantly revise and improve. Through the research and discussion of many managers, we can effectively improve the efficiency and quality of the management system. In addition, in the process of perfecting the management system, teaching managers should lead by example and carry out the spirit and thought of development to all teaching staff on the basis of improving educational ability, so that the management system can play a role in the new period.

4.3 Promotion of Social Practicality

In view of the problem that the legal education in our country does not conform to the needs of the society at present, it needs to be improved through the enhancement of practicality. In order to further enhance the practical ability and give full play to the value of law education, colleges and adults should be prepared for practical teaching. For example, the establishment of legal practice bases and teaching places inside and outside the school, in the teaching process of law-related knowledge, the organic combination of theory and practice, and appropriate combination of practical needs, practical activities as the key content of the curriculum, enhance students' practical application ability, and cultivate the professional ability needed by social development. At the same time, on this basis, we can learn through the way of school-enterprise cooperation. Students will provide more opportunities to expand their opinions and explore their potential in practice under the leadership of experienced professional lawyers. In addition, teachers need to pay attention to the need to adjust their curriculum design in the course of legal course education and to train more excellent talents. Therefore, the practice in the promotion of law education has a positive influence on the improvement of the deficiency in the development and the creation of an advantageous platform, which is of great importance in the process of the cultivation of the law of law.

5. Conclusion

To sum up, under the promotion of global development, it is necessary to improve the strength of our country's social legal system, so it is necessary to cultivate more legal talents. In the light of the challenges and opportunities of the current legal education in our country, as the effective platform, the university and the adult continuing education institution should pay more attention to the challenges and opportunities existing in the development of the law through the understanding of the challenges and opportunities of the law in the development of the society, So as to better use the effective countermeasure to realize the development of the law education in China.

References

- [1] (2019). The king is still standing. A Study of the Promotion Path of the Law Education in China. Reform and management, no. 09, pp. 183-184.
- [2] Li, Yang-hui. (2017). Challenges and opportunities in the new period of law education. Modern Education Research, no. 10, pp. 246.
- [3] Zhang, Xin. (2017). The Future Development and Prospect of Law Education. Social Management, no. 09, pp. 13-14.